

Lilith: A Feminist History Journal
NUMBER 6 SPRING 1989: WOMEN and WORK

Editorial	7-9
ARTICLES
Notes Towards a Discussion of Sexual Labour: Australia 1880-1910 Susan Margarey	10-32
Jessie Street and War-time Child Care Lynne Davis	33-49
Working Their Way to Respectability: Women, vagrancy and reform in late nineteenth century Melbourne Sue Davies	50-63
Prostitution: We call it sex-work now. (A comment) Cheryl Overs	64-68
Flashes of Lightning: Australian women artists of the 1920s and '30s. A positive self portrait Natalie Adamson	69-82
Nursing Now and Then: One woman's memoir Chris Hamilton	83-93
Women's Work as Barmaids. Some preliminary thoughts from a research project Diane Kirkby	94-99
Museums and Feminist History Lisa Dale	100-108
Women in the Paid Workforce – Sources available at the University of Melbourne Archives Maryanne McCubbin	109-116
Sources for Women's Studies at the State Library of Victoria. Part 2: Main Reference Library Barbara Carroll & Sue Healy	117-126
BOOK REVIEWS & BOOKNOTES
Carolyn Polizzotto, The Factory Floor Sue Fairbanks	127-133
Kerry James (ed.) Women in Rural Australia Kate Darian-Smith	134-135
Diane Bell, Generations Katie Holmes	136-140
Kay Schaffer, Woman and the Bush Rosemary Hunter	141-147
Margaret Bradstock & Louise Wakeling (eds.) Words from the Same Heart Mandy Leveratt	148-149

Hilary Bourdillon, Women as Healers ; Diane Atkinson, Votes for Women Fiona Paisley	150-152
Vivian Smith (ed.) Nettie Palmer: her private journal Julie Wells	153-154
Joan Grenville, Joan Makes History Julie Wells	155-158
Notes on Contributors	159